

Homeless : Poems by John Howell

Homeless has been published by Mākaro Press and can be:

borrowed from Wellington City Libraries,
purchased online at www.makaropress.co.nz
or by email from makaropress@gmail.com.

An interview with John and more information about the October 2017 launch event can be read via the Dominion Post online. John is graciously donating all profits from the sales of this publication to Te Hāpai, DCM.

Longings for the Eternal

This moral laser, this ethical knife,
cuts the pie chart into different wedges.
May we conduct our business
to sustainably feed the hungry,
cloth the naked and care for the sick.
Let our voices shape an economy
to prevent creating more destitute, addicts or obesity.
We hope for less waste, less war,
We long for more love, more surprises,
in the creative energy revealed in a cross,
and the sharing love of sacrifice and resurrection.